

I'll marry the whole village- song

*I'll roll up my sleeves
And stretch my accordion
I'll fulfill the secret wishes
And turn everything to joy!*

*Out of spite, I'll marry
My friend, companion, brother;
When women arrive in the village,
My name will be on everyone's lips.*

*I'll marry the whole village,
Even if I pay for it.
I'll find a new home for the old and the young
And gladly be the best man*

*Let beautiful women gather
I'll show them the candidates.
Let the women open their hearts
And choose one with a home to share.*

*There will be aunts and other cousins
And two hundred aromatic cuisines.
When I finish my work
From cities to villages all will go.*

*I'll marry the whole village,
Even if I pay for it.
We will dance, we will sing
We will have a good old dream.*

*I'll match up the beautiful with the ugly
And the happy with those sad
When you treat sadness like that,
Children will soon be there.*

*My village will be renewed
Never again will it be sad!
From one wedding to another
Hurrying to my own!*

*I'll marry the whole village,
Even if I pay for it.
Let everyone revel
Let every wound heal.*
